CITY NATIONAL BANK BUILDING IS NOW COMPLETED

W. J. EDWARDS,
AMBOY MAYOR, IS SUMMONED

Well Known Citizen of Lee County Died Suddenly in Night

Mayor William J. Edwards of Amboy, well known and well liked throughout Lee County, died suddenly at the family home in Amboy, death resulting from heart trouble. The end came as a distinct shock to his host of friends throughout the county who had no knowledge of his illness. His immediate friends in Amboy had known of his sickness during the past two weeks, but not even his family suspected the seriousness of his condition. He had been confined to his home but three days.

Born and raised in Amboy where he had always made him home, "Billy" as he has been more familiarly known, cast his lot in that city. He had served Amboy township and the city of Amboy as a public representative for more than a quarter of a century. In public life he had been assessor and collector of Amboy township, also representing his home town for a long period of years as a member of the board of supervisors, during which time he served on the more important committees and also as chairman of the body. Last spring he was elected mayor of Amboy, which position he held at the time of his death. For many years he had been active in the Lee County Fair association serving as treasurer of that organization.

Was Fraternalist.

Fraternally, he was equally active. He was a member of Illinois Central Lodge, No. 158, A. F. & A. M. and the Royal Arch chapter of Amboy and of Dixon Commandery, No. 33 Knights Templar of Dixon. He was a member of Amboy Lodge, L. O. O. F. and of Dixon Lodge, No. 778, B. P. O. Elks.

He leaves to mourn his passing, three daughters and two sons as follows: Mrs. Thomas Brew, Miss Anna and Mrs. Evelyn E. O'Brien of Amboy, the latter postmistress of that city; two sons, John and William at home; and two brothers, John of Chicago and Arthur of Amboy. A third brother, the late L. F. Edwards of Dixon, predeceased him in death.

News of his sudden death last night at the family home spread rapidly to every corner of Lee county today and was a distinct shock to all who knew him. He was loved and respected by all who had made his acquaintance and to the members of his immediate family, the deepest sympathy is extended.

Was Born in 1855

William J. Edwards was born September 15, 1855, and was the son of Isaac and Elizabeth (Saul) Edwards. His father was the first livery man in Amboy, establishing an enterprise of this character in 1855. He was also a railroad contractor and aided in the construction of the Illinois Central, the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul and the Toledo & St. Louis railroads. Mr. Edwards, Sr. was a staunch republican in his political beliefs and held various public offices, including those of sheriff and county supervisor. During the Civil war he was horse buyer for the government and he proved always competent and trustworthy in positions of responsibility. He died in April 1900 at the age of seventy-two, and was buried in Prairie Repose cemetery near Amboy.

W. J. Edwards acquired his early education in the public schools of Amboy and afterward attended Chicago university, which he left at the age of 19. He then engaged in the livery business and in railroad contracting with his father and was occupied in the former occupation for a period of more than 30 years.

In Amboy in May, 1880, Mr. Edwards married Miss Rose Nannery, a native of New York City. Mrs. Edwards passed away June 4, 1910 and is buried in St. Patrick's cemetery in Amboy.

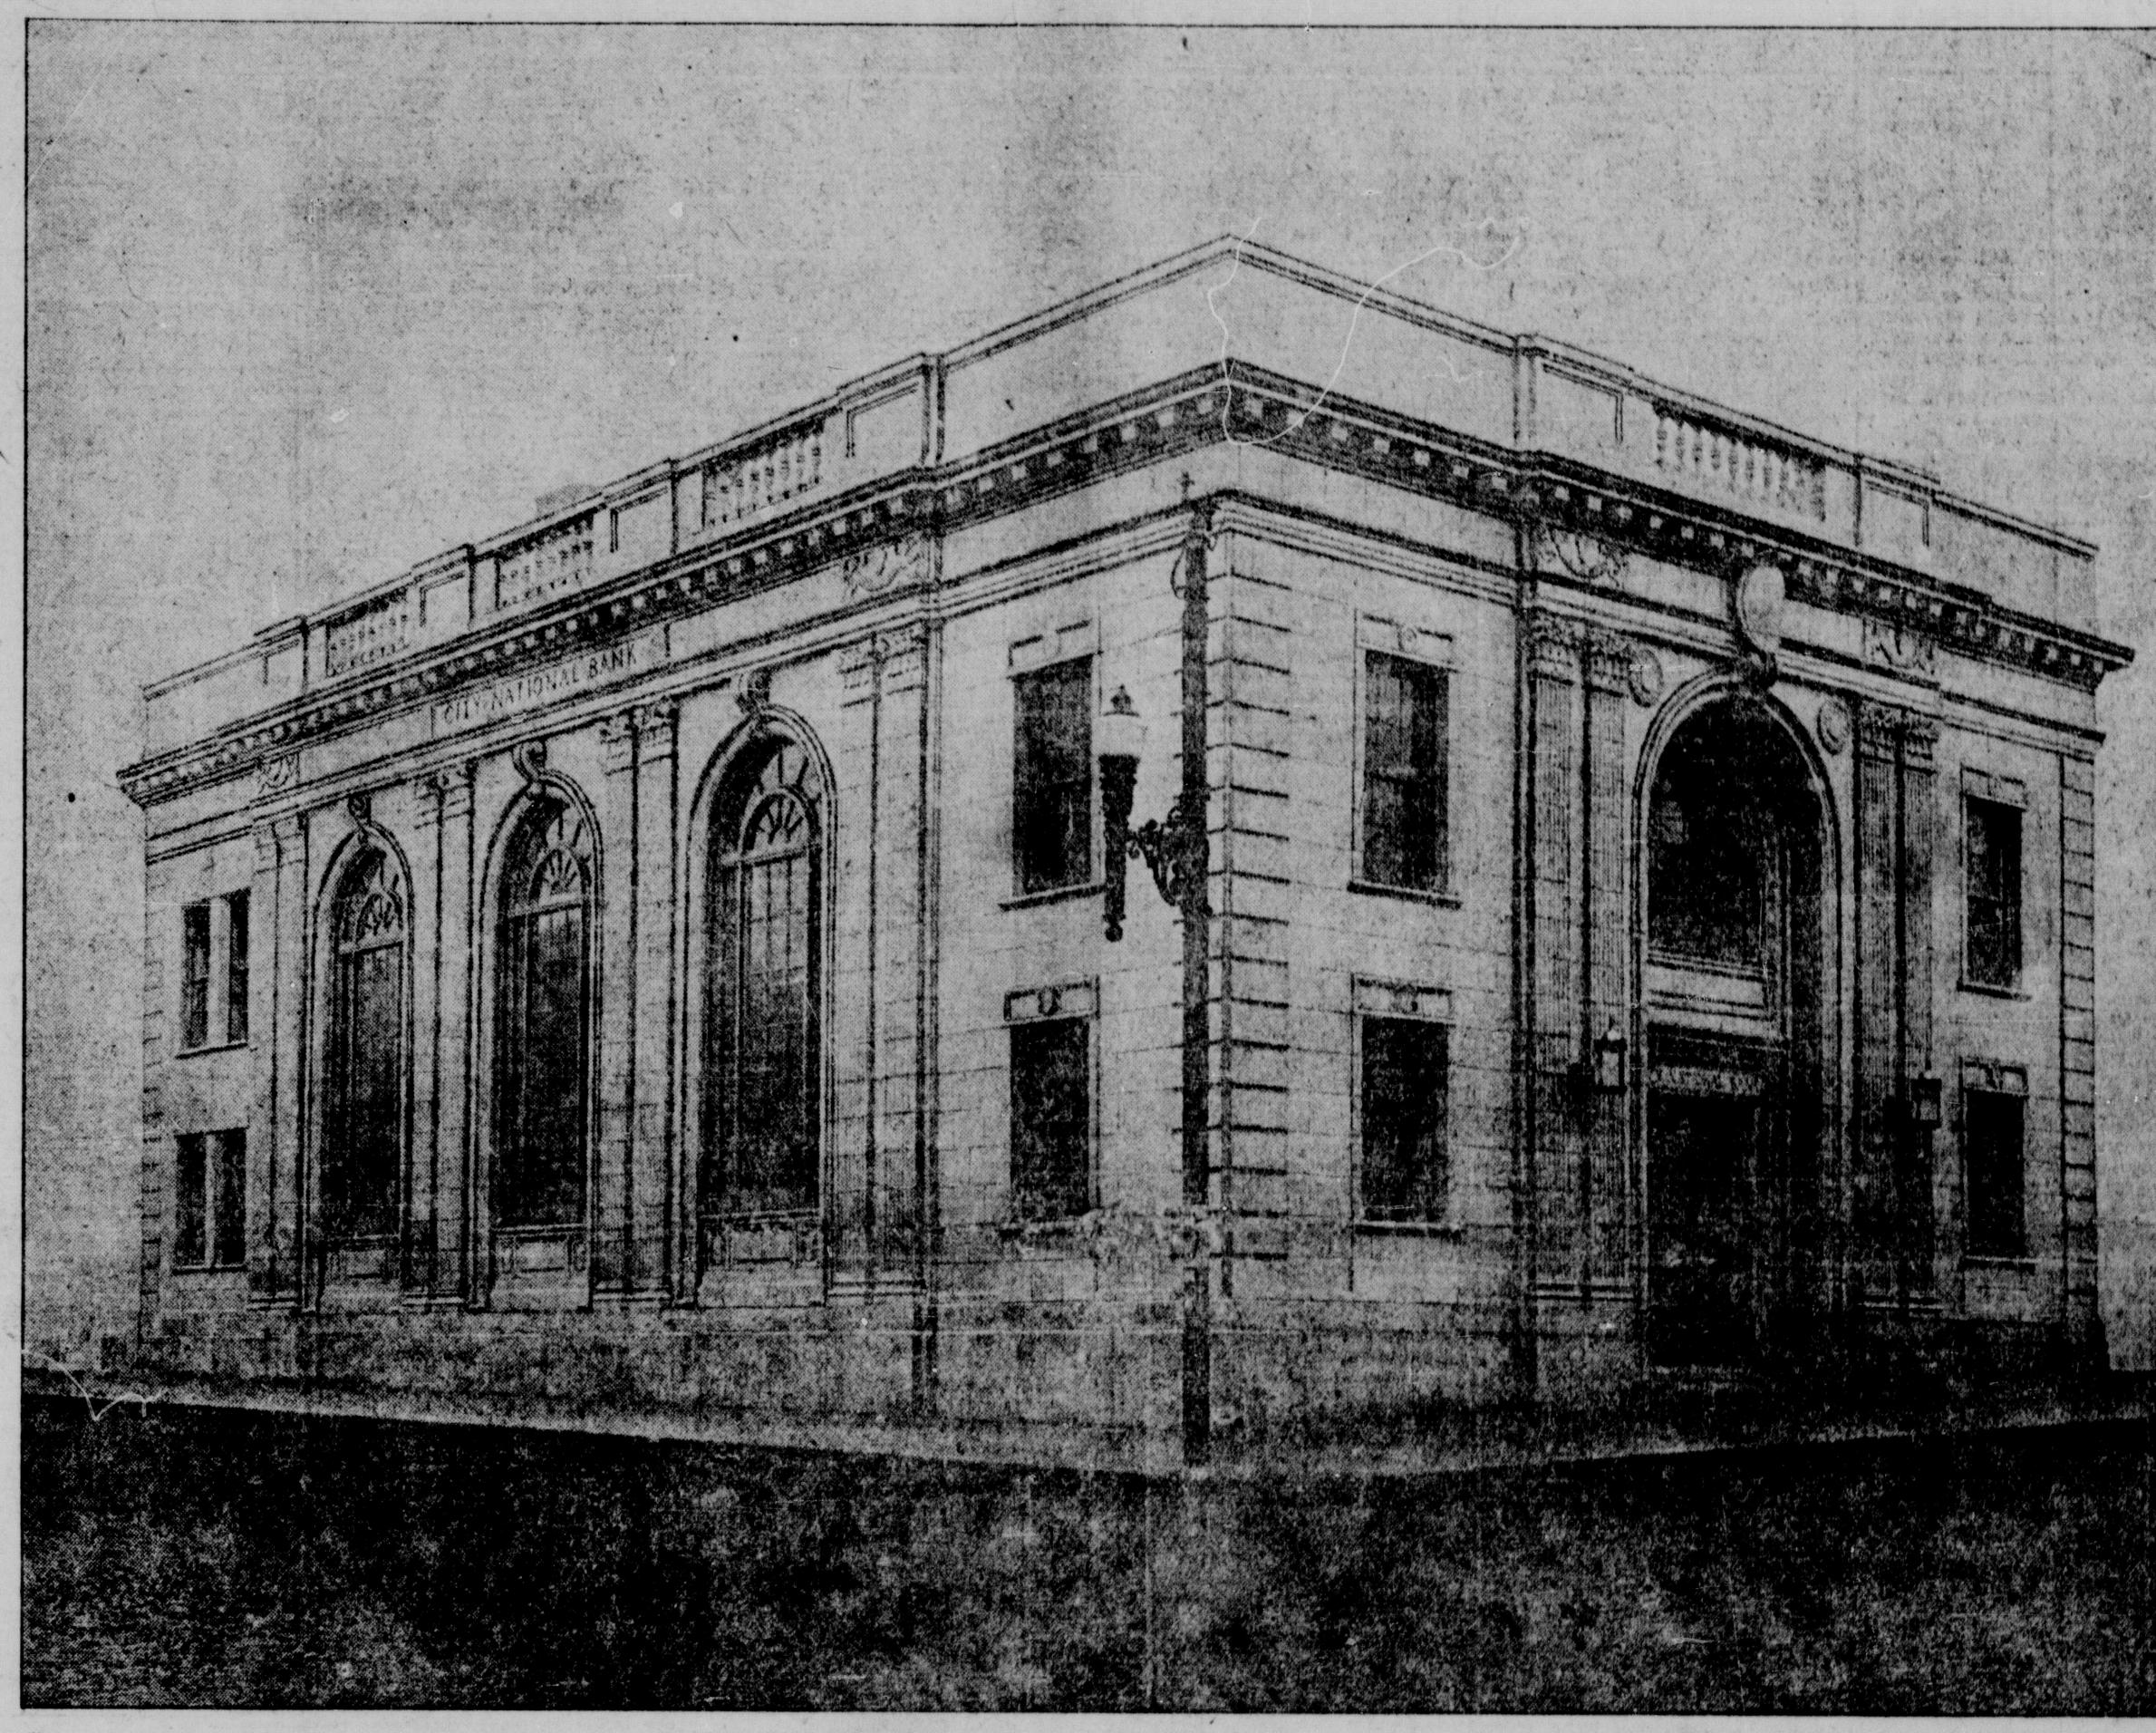

Cast of Let's Go Peggy to be Kiwanis' Guest

On Monday evening at 6:30 the members of the cast of "Let's Go Peggy" will be guests of the Kiwanis club at a banquet to be served in the parlors of the Christian church. The members of the club will do the serving and have complete charge of the program which will follow. Every member of the company is urged to be present.

BABY, PLAYING WITH MATCHES,
DIED IN FLAMES

Little Body is Recovered From Ruins of Rockford Bungalow

Rockford—A baby's curiosity for the bright glow of matches is believed to be responsible for the tragic death of three-year-old Robert Schneider in the fire which completely destroyed the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William T. Schneider, Friday.

From the ruins of the four room bungalow, which was leveled to the ground by the flames, firemen removed the charred body of the little boy, who met death despite the frantic efforts of his mother to save him.

Mystery veils the exact cause of the fatal fire, and the secret of its origin probably will never be known. But it is believed that the child, left on his bed by Mrs.

Schneider while she went to a neighbor's for water, arose, lighted a match and played around the gasoline stove.

Found Dead on Bed

When the gleaming spark from the match ignited the stove, it is presumed that "Bobbie," frightened by what had happened, rushed back to bed.

"I reprimanded him only yesterday for playing with matches," she sobbed.

"It was the first time he had ever done this."

Fear of another reprimand and fright at the sight of the flames enveloping the stove and spreading to the walls, probably caused the youngster to crawl under the covers. In a few minutes the entire interior of the house was in flames.

DIVORCE GIVEN
PEGGY JOYCE IN
'25 IS REVEALED

Court in Paris Gave Her Separation
From Count

Paris, Feb. 20—(AP)—Countess Gosta Morner, the former Peggy Hopkins Joyce, was granted a divorce from the Count, her fourth husband by a decree handed down Nov. 23, 1925, examination of the Paris court records revealed today.

The decree was granted in favor of the countess as Marguerite Upton against Carl Gustave Morner.

The plaintiff in her petition set forth that from the beginning her husband has shown a marked repugnance for life with her, which he called insupportable. She alleges that he

"separated from her morally" and that she had to resign herself to finding refuge in Paris where he refused to join her.

Peggy Hopkins Joyce was married to Count Morner then a resident of Chicago, on June 3, 1924.

President's Cold Much Improved, Doctor Says

Washington, Feb. 20—(AP)—The condition that has kept President Coolidge from his desk for two days has greatly improved, it was stated today.

Notwithstanding his improved condition, it was announced the President would remain in his quarters so that he might be able to address the department of Superintendence of the National Association on Monday evening.

HEIR TO FORTUNE OF TWO MILLIONS BURNED TO DEATH

Tragedy Follows Night of Revelry in Chicago
Resorts

Chicago, Feb. 20—(AP)—Frederick

Beverly Pearson, 30, whose father died two years ago, leaving a $2,000,

000 estate was burned to death today in a fire in his room at the Claridge Hotel started by a lighted cigarette.

John H. Hogshead, young companion in a night of revelry, narrowly escaped a similar fate.

The young men registered at the Claridge at 4:45 a. m., after a night at the six day bike races and other pleasure resorts. Both had been drinking. Hogshead told Police Captain Thomas Condon.

The entire room was in flames before Hogshead, who had thrown himself upon a bed with his clothing on was awakened. His clothes already were afire and the flames had singed his hair.

He staggered to the door, threw it open and shouted for help.

Hotel employees put a hose into action and prevented the fire from spreading. When city firemen arrived the fire had been extinguished.

They looked about and left.

After policemen arrived Hogshead began asking for his companion.

Further investigation disclosed young Pearson's body, terribly burned, seated in the charred remnants of an overstuffed chair into which he had fallen.

Clearing House Report

New York, Feb. 20.—(AP) The actual condition of clearing house banks and trust companies for the week shows excess reserve of $21,958,610. This is an increase in reserve of $10,779,000 compared with last week when excess reserve totaled $11,830,610.

Weekly Grain Review

Chicago, Feb. 20.—(AP)—With world shipments of wheat increasing especially from the southern hemisphere and with reports of hand selling of flour mills closing down in Great Britain and Ireland, grain prices in Chicago this week have averaged lower. Wheat this morning compared with week ago was 11.2 to 23.8¢ down, corn 2 to 2.5¢ off, oats 1.4 to 5.8¢ up and provisions varying from 22¢ decline to a raise of 25.

Word of a large grain raid failure in Great Britain was one notable bearing factor and so too was widespread moisture beneficial to domestic winter wheat and effectively disposing at present of any tendency toward a crop scare.

Emphasizing the prospect of a greatly reduced showing of reserves of wheat in the hands of growers, more or less anxiety has been manifested regarding the scant amount of contract wheat in Chicago. Complete exhaustion of the deliverable stock here is being forecast as probable before May 1, at the present rate of decrease. It is pointed out that under such circumstances traders who are short of May-delivery would be in a tight position.

Corn values were weighed down by the large amount of off-grade corn arriving here. On the other hand demand has developed for corn to be shipped east at opening of navigation. Oats displayed firmness owing to meagerness of arrivals.

Liberal exports of lard have tended to lift provisions.

Butter Market

Chicago, Feb. 20.—(AP)—An improvement in demand for fine butter and a restoration of confidence resulted in the developments of a firmer position on all the large butter markets during the week. The markets however, appeared to be rather short of fine quality butter with the exception of Philadelphia where early in the week there was a surplus of the top grades and receivers were having difficulty in keeping their floors clear. As the week progressed more confidence developed and by Friday all markets appeared to be in a fairly firm position.

In spite of the firmer tone and improved demand there was some speculation as to whether or not this condition would continue. The better demand may have been speculative in fact at Chicago, much of the firmness could be attributed to the demand for long lines of 92 score where milks and 89 and 90 score centralized cars for delivery on the February future options and naturally as the price on futures worked higher, spot prices also advanced.

“O CAUTAIN! MY CAPTAIN!”
One of the grandest of all the poems of Walt Whitman, America's great poet, is his “O Captain! My Captain!”—tribute to Lincoln.

“O Captain! my Captain! our fearful trip is done,
The ship has weathered every rack, the prize we sought is won.
The port is near, the bells I hear, the people all exulting.
While follow eyes the steady keel the vessel grim and daring:

But O heart! heart! heart!
O the bleeding drops of red,
Where on the deck my Captain lies, Fallen, cold and dead.

O Captain! my Captain! rise up and hear the bells;
Rise up—for you the flag is flung—for you the bugle thrills.
For you bouquets and ribboned wreaths—for you the shores acrowing.
For they call, the swaying mass, their eager faces turning:

Here, Captain! dear father!
This arm beneath your head!
It is some dream that on the deck You've fallen and dead.

My Captain does not answer, his lips are pale and still.
My father does not feel my arm, he has no pulse nor will.
The ship is anchored safe and sound, its voyage closed and done,
From fearful trip the victor ship comes in with object won:

Exult, O shores, and ring, O bells!
But I, with mournful tread,
Walk the deck my Captain lies, Fallen, cold and dead.

Fiftieth Wedding Anniversary Observed

On Wednesday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Crawford of Franklin Grove entertained with a 6 o'clock dinner in honor of the 50th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Crawford. Those present were only the immediate members of the family. They were: Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Crawford, Mrs. Virgie Crawford and daughter, Miss Lois, of Franklin Grove; and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Crawford and daughter of Dixon. Mr. Crawford is not enjoying the best of health and improves but little as the days pass. All his friends hope that he will soon improve and that Mr. and Mrs. Crawford will be able to enjoy many years more of united happiness.

Class Entertained At Marth Home

The Sunshine Class of the Methodist church was delightfully entertained last evening by their teacher, Mrs. A. E. Marth, 421 Ottawa avenue. Appropriate games were played and refreshments served in keeping with Washington's birthday. The contests afforded much merriment.

The girls declared the evening to have been a most happy and enjoyable one.

Menus for the Family

BY SISTER MARY.

BREAKFAST—

Orange juice, cereal, thin cream, baked French toast, syrup, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON—

Baked luncheon squash, celery sandwiches, snow pudding, milk, tea.

DINNER—

Casserole of lamb and vegetables, grape fruit salad, whole wheat bread, prune souffle with custard sauce, milk coffee.

Children under school age should not be served the dinner salad but may have the rest of the meal as suggested. Plain lettuce is an excellent salad for small persons.

Baked Luncheon Squash.

One and one-half cups sifted squash, 3 tablespoons grated cheese, 2 eggs, 1/2 cup finely chopped nut, 1 1/2 cups milk, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon pepper, 2 tablespoons butter.

The squash should be baked and then rubbed through a colander and vegetable rice. Combine squash, cheese, salt, nuts, butter, pepper and milk. Beat well and add eggs well beaten. Turn into a buttered baking dish and bake 40 minutes in a moderate oven. When firm to the touch the dish is done.

The nuts can of course be omitted but they add to the food value and should be used unless the dish is planned particularly for small children. Even then if the nuts are finely chopped children as young as five years may be served the concoction.

Mrs. Eckhardt Was Surprised

Mrs. John Eckhardt of Franklin Grove, was completely surprised one evening last week by a number of relatives and friends. The hours were spent in playing games and partaking of refreshments. Those in attendance were: Joe Miller and wife, Oscar Johnson, Miss Florence Crumer, all of Dixon; Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Nase and daughter, Ethel; Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Nase and family, Raymond Dystart, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Sledel, Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Krug and son, Glenn, Frank Miller and wife, Harry Eckhardt and family, Mrs. Mary Miller and son Elmer; Mr. and Mrs. Roy Miller and daughter.

FASHION HINTS—

Wool on Sheer Fabrics.

Wool embroidery on georgette crepe and chiffon is one of the new style tips from the Paris openings. The more colorful the embroidery, the better. Slips of Metal Cloth. Some of the loveliest lace frocks are made over narrow sheaths of metal cloth, particularly a combination of pink and silver.

Fur Matches Fabric.

Chiffon capes and coats for summer will be trimmed with ostrich or with summer fur, dyed to match the material.

Mrs. J. H. Anderson Surprised Yesterday

Mrs. J. H. Anderson of 321 First street was happily surprised Friday, Feb. 19th, it being her seventy-eighth birthday. There were about twenty-two of her intimate friends present. She received some very pretty tokens of respect and affection, including a beautiful plant from the W. R. C. and a shower of beautiful cards from a group of friends at Biggsville, Ill. Biggsville is the home of her niece, Mrs. C. E. Dixon, who is a guest at the home of her aunt, over the latter's birthday.

After a most delicious luncheon served at Oak Tree Inn, which was very much enjoyed by the chapter, the members adjourned to meet with Mrs. Abner Barkow for the program of the afternoon.

The Chapter was called to order by the Regent, Mrs. Rhodes. After the Salute to the Flag, she asked Mrs. S. S. Dodge to preside in behalf of the program committee.

Mrs. Dodge had prepared quotations from Washington's and Lincoln's writings, which were read by the chapter.

The next number on the program was a piano solo by Mrs. Carolus of Sterling, daughter of Mrs. Barkow. This number was greatly enjoyed and she kindly responded to an encore, which was followed by Mrs. A. G. Burnham with a reading in her pleasing manner. As usual she had to respond to an encore.

Mrs. Willard Thompson sang two beautiful solos which were much appreciated by the Chapter.

The Chapter had the pleasure of having with them the State Regent, Mrs. Frank Bowman of Sterling. She told of her trip to the Continental Congress at Washington and of the dedication of the Fountain at Plymouth, Mass., in which all the Daughters were interested and she also told of many other things in which the Daughters were interested. All were pleased that a woman as busy as Mrs. Bowman, State Regent, is, could give the Chapter an afternoon.

The afternoon was greatly enjoyed by the large number present, and the birthday anniversary celebration was considered a great success.

The nuts can of course be omitted but they add to the food value and should be used unless the dish is planned particularly for small children. Even then if the nuts are finely chopped children as young as five years may be served the concoction.

The WOMAN'S DAY

by Allene Summer

Clippings.

Youth is too much for some of them! A superintendent of school in the east resigns because the school board will not forbid school dances, and seems powerless to stop the libation of gin at said dances.

Games were enjoyed during the afternoon, Mrs. Clay winning the first prize at a guessing contest. Gifts were given to the oldest and youngest members of the party, the gifts being beautiful hand-made pin cushions, made by Mrs. J. E. Myers, the oldest being Mrs. Nellie Potter; the youngest Mrs. Nina Dixon, and younger still, but one of the party, was Helen Lough. A sumptuous four-course dinner was served, which was greatly enjoyed by all.

The guests departed late in the happy day wishing Mrs. Anderson many happy returns of the day and gave Mrs. Clay a standing vote of thanks for opening her home to Mrs. Anderson's guests.

The next number on the program was a piano solo by Mrs. Carolus of Sterling, daughter of Mrs. Barkow. This number was greatly enjoyed and she kindly responded to an encore, which was followed by Mrs. A. G. Burnham with a reading in her pleasing manner. As usual she had to respond to an encore.

Mrs. Willard Thompson sang two beautiful solos which were much appreciated by the chapter.

The Chapter had the pleasure of having with them the State Regent, Mrs. Frank Bowman of Sterling. She told of her trip to the Continental Congress at Washington and of the dedication of the Fountain at Plymouth, Mass., in which all the Daughters were interested. All were pleased that a woman as busy as Mrs. Bowman, State Regent, is, could give the Chapter an afternoon.

The afternoon was greatly enjoyed by the large number present, and the birthday anniversary celebration was considered a great success.

The nuts can of course be omitted but they add to the food value and should be used unless the dish is planned particularly for small children. Even then if the nuts are finely chopped children as young as five years may be served the concoction.

DIXON RELIEF CORPS MEETING

The regular afternoon meeting of Dixon Relief Corps, No. 218, Auxiliary to the Grand Army of the Republic, will be held on Monday, Feb. 22.

The officers are especially requested to be on time so the meeting can be called promptly at 2:30 o'clock.

After a brief session a program in honor of Washington's birthday will be followed by a Washington tea for the members and friends. George and Martha have accepted the invitation extended to them and will assist in serving.

JONQUILS AND WINTER HONEYSUCKLE IN BLOOM

In a letter from Mrs. Cadesman Pope, (nee Sue Patrick) from her home in Lawrenceville, Ga., mention is made of some of the lovely spring flowers now in bloom, among them the wild crab apple, winter honeysuckle and jonquils.

THE PRESIDENT'S ATTITUDE ON FEDERAL AID.

In his recent budget message to Congress President Coolidge unequivocally stated his belief in the necessity for continued Federal aid to the states for highway construction. He did, however, recommend for the consideration of Congress that future legislation restrict the Government's participation in state road construction to primary or interstate highways. He indicated that he felt such action would operate to diminish the amount of Federal contributions.

Should the theory be adopted that the Federal Government could not afford to continue to aid in the construction of as much as 7% of all the highways in the Union, it would logically follow that the first place to eliminate Federal aid and thus economize in Federal expenditure would be in connection with the construction of the inter-county roads of secondary importance, now included on the Federal Aid System.

It should be borne in mind, however, officials of the Lincoln Highway Association point out, that the "primary" and "secondary" classification of highways does not in every state correctly draw the line between those highways necessary for through travel—interstate transportation—and those of only local benefit.

In those states of vast area, says the Lincoln Highway Association, where very long road mileages are necessary to connect important points and to lead across the commonwealth, the entire 7% of the total state highway mileage available for Federal aid is required to include all of the important interstate thoroughfares. The Association cities Nevada, one of the states crossed by the Lincoln Highway, as an instance of this. There, practically the entire Federal aid system is requisite to adequate interstate transportation.

A hardship would be worked on such states should Congress fail to give adequate consideration to their special problems and undertake to arbitrarily limit the application of future Federal aid appropriations.

WHICH WILL IT BE?

Suppose that scientists would announce tomorrow that they had found the secret of harnessing the power of the atom?

This isn't a foolish supposition. As eminent a scientist as Dr. R. A. Millikan—who probably knows more about the subject than any other man alive—intimates in a magazine article that this development may come while some of us are still alive.

It would mean, of course, that our civilization would be remade. Possibly no more than eight-hour days; probably an hour's work a day would be all we would need with such a tremendous source of power.

If we are ready, spiritually and mentally, for a change like this, it would be the greatest blessing imaginable. Toll, poverty, crowded tenements, back-breaking labor—all of these would vanish forever.

If we are not ready, it would be the greatest curse in the world's history. Science can improve the material conditions of life; but if we are not fit to accept them we will be shipwrecked. Life is more than material things; there is some higher end to it than simply the attainment of a good amount of leisure.

And here is the church's opportunity. Our spiritual leaders must make us ready. Tolerance, broad-mindedness, fairness, a love of justice, a desire to develop mentally and spiritually—these are the traits they must foster in us, if science's promised prize is to be the blessing it should be.

NEW YORK.

The kind of show New York stages are probably New York's business and no one else's. If we visit New York we don't have to go to them if we don't want to.

But if you elect to defend the quaint New York custom of putting on revues in which the chorus girls dispense with almost all of their clothes, don't get off on the wrong foot by rising to join in the chant of "art for art's sake."

These shows don't feature semi-nakedness for art's sake, and everybody knows it. If you want to argue that they have a right to use scanty costumes, go ahead; you can make out a good case for yourself. But don't beg off the issue by talking about "art." That has nothing to do with whatsoever.

A Wilmington (N. C.) baby of two months named Ruth can walk already, but you can't believe these proud fathers.

There is such an enormous surplus of corn that the price of meal will not go up much this week.

You may think you are unlucky, but then maybe you should be in jail.

As far as we are concerned, one stalk of asparagus is a sure crop.

There are parts of the United States so dry they are almost as dusty as the Pacific Ocean.

What everybody seems to save up for a rainy day is pessimism.

Things could be worse. It's a long time before vacation.

Enjoying your work is more fun than enjoying its profits.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

by Olive Roberts Barton

THE TWINS MEET HICKYDOO

"Right here," said a voice and turning quickly the Twins b'held the queerest looking person they had ever seen.

When Jupe and the Twins got safely over the hill in their automobile Jupe put his foot on the brake and stopped the car.

"Whew! That was a close shave!" he exclaimed.

Nancy shivered. "Don't talk about shaving please!" she begged. "That is what started all the trouble. Blue told him he didn't need a shaving brush."

"That's right," said Jupe. "And do you know, that bear has been prime minister and chief cook and bottle-washer of the Land of the Blue Cherry for over a hundred years. That's gratitude for you!"

"What shall we do now?" asked Nick.

Jupe thought for a minute. Then said, "Let's go and ask Hickydoo. He'll know. There is one thing that we have to be thankful for, however! You can talk again. Blue Whiskers removed the spell so you could tell him some stories, and then he forgot to twist your tongues again."

"That's right," said Nancy. "Where does Hickydoo live?"

"Right here," said a voice and turning quickly the Twins b'held the queerest looking person they had ever seen.

He was made of wood and as square as a block. His head was square and his body was square and his arms and legs and feet were square.

"Why, hello there, Hickydoo!" cried Jupe. "I didn't see you."

"I just came," said Hickydoo. "I was over on the other side of the world when I heard you speak my name. So I came at once."

"But how did you get here so quickly?" asked Nick. "It takes Daddy a whole day to go to New York."

"I came by wireless," was all Hickydoo would say. "What were you talking about me for?"

"We want advice," said Jupe. "These children came to the Land of the Blue Cherry to find the blue cherry. It seems that the Fairy Hunter."

"How far is that?" asked Nick.

"I know where the Truffel Hunter lives," said Jupe. "Jump in, Twins."

"Please close the drawer first, and put back the papers as you found them," said Hickydoo. "Otherwise I get mixed up in my index."

"That's a funny name for his stomach," whispered Nick to the others, and they all laughed.

But the instant he put the papers back and pushed the drawer into place, Hickydoo vanished. All they could see was a little cloud of dust.

THE VERY IDEA

by Hal Cochran

FIRST AID

Seven years old, and a fine little tot. You've known one just like her, as likely as not. The sort of a youngster that makes mothers glad. So good about things, they've no time to be bad.

With sweepin', an' dustin', and dishes and such, the housework for mother is sometimes too much, and folks who have raised one most likely have found, it helps when you have a wee daughter around.

A hummin', an' workin' and smilin' all day, forgotten she's missin' a heap of good play. The worth of a child, in her early life's told as early, sometimes, as at seven years old.

There's comfort for mom when her household is such, though maybe the help ne'er amounts to so much. It isn't the work that is done, but, in truth, the working around with the spirit of youth.

I envy the mother who boasts of the tot, who really does little, but helps out a lot. When plans for the work of the household are made, she knows she can call on her little first aid.

An athletic girl often changes her mind about being fond of sports after she marries one.

Parting is painful when you bear down too hard on the comb. And the best horse sense you can use is to keep away from the races.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 20

It so, you are born with poor business judgment but you seem to have a great knack for making money.

Sudden turnups will see you through many business deals which surely would throw others into bankruptcy.

You are not inclined to worry easily and this is a great help to you when your business deals are turned backward.

Your health will be good and your marriage a successful one.

SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 21

If so, you were born with a generous and self-sacrificing nature which will make many friends for you.

You are gifted with a determined and firm will and should become a leader.

Your love affairs will be few and far between as you are inclined to let the other sex alone.

But when you do "fall" you will find hard, but only after much thought which assures a happy married life.

About Our Kitten

Inspired by The Telegraph's poetic appeal for word of our missing cat—which, by the way, has been returned to our fireside, a well known Dixon woman, a friend of this paper, has indited the following lines

THE LOST KITTY

I've lost my kitty, my poor little kitty And don't know where she has gone, I've looked in the cradle, and under the table, But no little kitty I've found.

I'll call my dog Rover, to look the fields over,

And bring back my kitty to me, No dog could be kinder, but he cannot find her.

Oh! Where can my poor kitty be

I saw a boy ramble away with a bundle,

Down by the clear running brook,

It might be my kitty, my poor little kitty,

I guess I'll go down there and look,

I saw a boy ramble away with a bundle,

Down by the clear running brook,

It might be my kitty, my poor little kitty,

I guess I'll go down there and look,

I saw a boy ramble away with a bundle,

Lee county citizens this morning received with profound sorrow the news of the sudden death last night of Hon. William J. Edwards, Mayor of Amboy, after a short illness. Mr. Edwards represented his township as supervisor for many years, and was one of Lee county's most prominent, influential and beloved citizens.

Mr. Dunning, the Chicago architect who designed the City National Bank is well known in Dixon for the many other structures which he has designed for residents of this community. The bank building is a beautiful structure from every viewpoint, and is perfectly adapted for its location. Much credit is due to Mr. Dunning and to Charles W. Glendale Co. of Chicago, the general contractors, who have erected the structure in a most workmanlike manner.

Mr. Dunning has designed many important buildings, not only in Chicago, but throughout the United States. He was associate architect of the largest building in the world, on the Furniture Mart in Chicago, and is the present architect for the Midway Athletic Club, a $3,000,000 structure of beautiful design. Mr. Dunning is also consulting architect for the Lakeshore Athletic Building, which is a $4,000,000 project now in process of construction, and has designed many large banks, hotels and office buildings. He was for three years director of the American Institute of Architects, and in 1925 was its first Vice President, but retired from office because of pressure of architectural practice.

The delicious cafeteria supper which had been prepared by the many excellent cooks present was served at 6:30, followed by cards—the evening proving one of much enjoyment to everyone present.

Harvey Dieter presented the estimable couple with a fernery, as a token of the best wishes of those present.

At late hour all departed for their home, wishing Mr. and Mrs. Bock success and happiness in their new home.

GALENA MAN IS FOUND "GUILTY" OF MANSLAUGHTER

Jury Convicts Frank Bell, 50, of Killing James Malone

Galena, Ill.—(Special)—Frank R. Bell, 50, indicted by the Jo Daviess county grand jury for murder, was found guilty of manslaughter by a jury in circuit court here after eight hours deliberation. Bell was charged with shooting James Malone, 55, to death in the living room of Bell's home here Jan. 9.

The defense moved for a new trial immediately and this will be argued before Judge Emerson of Oregon, Ill., March 8. Under the law, Bell may be given a year to life in Joliet prison.

Both Bell and Mrs. Bell testified that Malone was drunk at the Bell home the night of Jan. 9 and became abusive, using obscene language before women in the party. Bell said he protested and that Malone threatened his life. Bell then went to the kitchen of his home, got out his shotgun and shot Malone point blank in the face.

Former Congressman John C. McKenzie was special prosecutor, acting with State's Atty. F. J. Campbell. Harry C. Tear, former state's attorney of Jo Daviess county, and Louis Nack were defense counsel.

CITY NATIONAL BANK IS ONE OF OLDEST INSTITUTIONS IN CITY; WAS STARTED IN 1853

Story of Its Growth Reads Like a Romance and Reflects the Progress of the Community

The City National Bank is one of the oldest institutions of this city. In 1853 Robertson, Eastman & Co. of Rockford, Illinois, established a bank in the building then located just west of the site where the offices of F. X. Newcomer Company is now located. In 1854 S. C. Eells was employed in this bank as a clerk, and in the spring of 1855 Mr. Eells became a member of the firm, under the name of Robertson, Eells & Company, and founded the bank which has continued its existence down to the present time.

On January 21st, 1855, the Lee County National Bank was organized by Mr. Eells and his associates, with a capital of $100,000.00, and with Joseph Crawford as President; Joseph Utley, Vice President; S. C. Eells, Cashier; and John Coleman, Assistant Cashier.

Among others who served as Directors of the Lee County National Bank in the first few years of its existence we find the names of James A. Hawley, W. H. Van Epps, and S. E. William. At a later date E. W. Pomeroy, Quarles Ely, B. B. Higgins, and Josiah Little served as Directors. Mr. Little afterwards organized the First National Bank of Amboy, of which he was President for many years.

only a hamlet, but few men ever did more for the welfare of the city. Mr. Crawford was born in Pennsylvania in 1811. In 1831 he began teaching school, and continued in that profession for four years. While a teacher he studied surveying, and in April 1835 he started West, walking the entire distance from Pennsylvania to Illinois. Soon after reaching Illinois in 1835 he settled on a farm between Dixon and Grand Detour, and followed his profession of surveying for

New Board Organized.

The Board of Directors of the City National Bank organized by electing Joseph Crawford, president, and Samuel C. Eells, cashier. Joseph Crawford remained President of the Bank until his death on August 11th, 1891, when S. C. Eells succeeded to the Presidency. Mr. Crawford had been President of the Lee County National Bank from the date of its organization in 1855 down to the time of his death. He was a wise counselor and a careful and prudent banker, and these characteristics combined with his uniform courtesy and kindness made him remarkably adapted for such a position. J. Wilbur Crawford succeeded his father Joseph Crawford as a Director of the Bank, and Leonard Andrus was at that time appointed to the position of Cashier in lieu of S. C. Eells, who succeeded to the Presidency, and Charles E.

Name Changed in 1884

In 1884 the name of the Bank was changed from the Lee County National Bank to the City National Bank, of Dixon. It is interesting to note that the stockholders at that time were as follows:

Joseph Crawford.
Samuel C. Eells.
Barton B. Higgins.
Leonard Andrus.
Joseph Utley.
A. C. Bardwell.
Chas. C. Hunt.
John D. Crabtree.
Edward N. Howell.

AMOS H. BOSWORTH
Director

Chandler was then appointed Assistant Cashier.

Vacancies Filled.

In 1892 J. W. Crawford was elected Vice President, and remained in that position for many years. The personnel of the Directors remained practically unchanged until July 1901 when Warren C. Durkes, of Franklin Grove, Illinois, became affiliated with the Bank, and was elected Director and Cashier, with S. C. Eells, President.

In 1884 the Directors of the bank were as follows:

dent; Leonard Andrus, Vice President, and Charles E. Chandler, Assistant Cashier. Judge John D. Crabtree, who had been a Director of the Bank for many years, died in 1902, and O. J. Downing succeeded to the vacancy. The death of Leonard Andrus in 1905 left a vacancy in the directorate which was filled by Amos H. Bosworth, who has continued as a Director.

On account of his advanced age, O. J. Downing in 1929 sold his holdings in the Bank to W. B. Brinton, who was elected as a Director and Vice President to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mr. Downing.

The Bank has always been fortunate in having as members of its Board of Directors many of the most influential men of the community.

Conservatism and safety have been principles which have been carefully followed, and those policies have resulted in bringing the Bank to its present condition of great financial strength.

Shortly thereafter the Bank purchased the building which it then occupied, representing the north half of the site where the present building is located, and the other half was subsequently acquired a few years later when the building project was first contemplated.

tor until the present time.

In 1911 the number of Directors was increased to seven, and E. N. Howell and H. C. Warner were elected Directors and have ever since continued to serve in that capacity.

Dr. C. C. Hunt moved to Sutphin in 1912, and on that account submitted his resignation as a Director and Vice president, and O. J. Downing was elected Vice President and W. H. Badger, another of the present Directors, was chosen to fill the vacancy in the directorate.

Death of S. C. Eells.

The death of S. C. Eells in 1913 ended a long and loyal service to the Bank, extending over the entire period of the existence of the organization and its predecessors. Mr. Eells had built up the institution from a small and modest beginning to one of the most powerful institutions in the community at the time of his death. The safety of his depositors was one of his greatest ambitions, and the Bank profited by his loyal fidelity. After the death of Mr. Eells in 1913, W. C. Durkes was advanced to the Presidency, and John L. Davies was elected Director and Cashier.

Shortly thereafter the Bank purchased the building which it then occupied, representing the north half of the site where the present building is located, and the other half was subsequently acquired a few years later when the building project was first contemplated.

On account of his advanced age, O. J. Downing in 1929 sold his holdings in the Bank to W. B. Brinton, who was elected as a Director and Vice President to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mr. Downing.

BANKERS SERVE EVERYONE; MAY- BE INDIRECTLY

Many Branches of Service of Banking are Explained

The greater majority of residents of a community who are engaged in earning a living, and that includes nearly every grown person, have connections with some bank. It is a modern way of conducting business, even the business of living. But there are few persons who understand the many ways that a person may be served by the bank. The City National Bank is so equipped that it can give its customers every service that can be secured through the largest banks in the country.

The bank is composed of a group of departments, each engaged in giving service. A study of these departments, showing the many ways in which customers may be aided, will be of interest to all.

In the following paragraphs are listed the various departments and the functions of each:

Checking Accounts—The accounts of every individual or firm, no matter how small or how large, are earnestly sought and well cared for. Depositors are given pass books, check books, etc., and by means of the elaborate accounting equipment statements of each patron's account can be given whenever requested. Monthly statements are a matter of routine.

Certificates of Deposit—Certificates of deposit are issued upon request. These bear interest at the rate of 4 per cent per annum.

Savings Deposits—This department also pays 4 per cent per annum and the interest is credited to the account twice a year. Deposits made on or before the tenth of the month draw interest from the first.

Loans to Farmers.

Commercial Loans—Customers are granted loans based upon the necessities of their businesses and upon their making a proper financial statement indicating that they are entitled to credit for the amounts advanced.

Collection Department—This bank handles collections "both ways." Both collections from local individuals and concerns and those drawn by local people upon out of town debtors are expeditiously handled by the bank.

Bonds and Mortgages—This is an important phase of the banking business and future plans call for its development to an even larger extent. Farm mortgages and other mortgage notes, bonds and other securities, are purchased by the bank, after full investigation, and disposed of to its patrons. It is the effort to secure such securities as yield the highest rate of interest compatible with perfect safety. Investigations are made expeditiously handled by the bank.

TEN KINDS OF MONEY IN USE IN U.S. TODAY

Many People are Not Familiar With All of U.S. Money

There are at present ten kinds of money in circulation in the United States, viz:

1. Gold coins.
2. Gold certificates.
3. Standard silver dollars.
4. Silver certificates.
5. Subsidiary coins.
6. Treasury notes of 1890.
7. U. S. notes.
8. National bank notes.
9. Federal reserve notes.
10. Federal reserve bank notes.

The gold coins, which are the most important of all, are coined in denominations of $2.50, $5, $10, $20, being called respectively the quarter eagle, half eagle, eagle and double eagle. The standard of value in the United States is the dollar "consisting of 25.8 grains of gold, nine-tenths fine". Gold is legal tender without any limit.

The gold certificates are practically warehouse receipts for gold which is stored in the Treasury. They are issued to save the wear and tear, and also the inconvenience of handling the actual coin. They were made legal tender in December, 1919. Ten Dollars is the smallest denomination printed.

The standard silver dollar weighs 412.5 grains, of which nine-tenths is pure silver, and one-tenth copper alloy. This makes the ratio of silver to gold practically 16 to 1, or in other words the pure silver in a dollar weighs approximately sixteen times as much as the gold in a gold dollar. Silver has been the money of the common people, so to speak. It has had a fluctuating existence, and at one time its coining was ordered to be stopped at the United States mint. It is legal tender to the same extent as gold, except where payment otherwise is stipulated.

The silver certificates were first issued in 1878 in exchange for silver dollars, and here is always an amount of silver dollars held "in trust" exactly equal to the amount of silver certificates outstanding. They are not legal tender, but are receivable for all public dues.

The subsidiary coins refer chiefly to the small change which we use. They are coined as needed, and are legal tender to the amount of ten dollars in any one payment, while the nickel and cent are legal tender only to the extent of twenty-five cents.

The Treasury notes of 1890 were issued to pay for silver bullion. They differ from the silver certificates in that they are redeemable in either gold or silver coin. There is not an appreciable amount outstanding as silver certificates have been substantial in their places. They are legal tender for all debts, public and private, except where otherwise stipulated.

The United States notes are promises to pay to bearer and were issued to provide the Treasurer with funds to meet the expenses of the Civil War. They were called greenbacks and were made legal tender by Congress for payment of all debts, public and private, except customs duties and interest on the public debt. They are still being issued, an there is maintained in the Treasury a reserve fund of about 43 per cent in gold for their redemption.

The National bank notes, as has been noted before, are issued against two per cent government canal bonds and 4 per cent United States bonds of 1925 by the national banks. They are not legal tender, but are receivable for all public dues except duties on imports. The limit of issue of United States notes is $346,681,016; denominations, $1, $2, $5, $10, $20, $50, $100, $500 and $1,000.

The Federal Reserve notes are not bank notes, but obligations of the government issued by the Federal Reserve Board to the Federal Reserve Banks upon deposit of an equal amount of commercial paper and bills discounted for member banks, and are further protected by a gold reserve of not less than forty per cent of the amount of notes in circulation. Each bank must maintain a deposit of gold sufficient to redeem them of not less than five per cent, which, however, is included in the forty per cent reserve requirement. They are receivable for all taxes, customs, and other public dues and are redeemable in gold at the Treasury Department in Washington or in gold or lawful money at any Federal Reserve bank. They are issued in denominations of $5, $10, $20, $50, $100, $500, $1,000, $5,000.

The Federal Reserve bank notes are somewhat like the national bank notes in that they are secured by United States bonds or notes. In addition, Federal Reserve banks may issue bank notes secured by an equal amount of United States one-year gold notes and certificates of indebtedness in the amount equal to the aggregate of silver certificates which have been withdrawn from circulation under the act of April 23, 1918, authorizing the melting of silver dollars.

These notes are receivable for "All taxes and excises and all other dues to the United States except duties on imports and also for all salaries and other debts and demands owing by the United States to individuals, corporations, and associations within the United States to individuals, corporations, and associations within the United States, except interest on public debt."

It has been said that this mixed collection of metal and paper money is by no means a credit to us, yet we will note by a study of our monetary history that each has been brought into demand by a particular need. The Secretary of the Treasury is charged with the duty of maintaining all

STRANGE WAR RECORD

Winnipeg—Wounds received by Ernest and Harry Gridley, twin brothers, on the western front in the World War left each minus the left leg. The brothers were wounded at the same time on the morning of Oct. 30, one year apart. Records show that each was operated on 19 times for war injuries. They were reunited at a convention of the Canadian Amputees' Association here.

BRIDE TAKES "TRIP"

and it is held in place by a sufficient number of bolts three inches in diameter to make it absolutely impossible to force the door open when it is closed. Five-ply welded crane steel sections and hardened drill proof screws were used in the construction, and the door has an ultimate strength of more than 50,000 pounds per square inch. The metal is a highly refractory alloy, prepared after the most exhaustive experiments and tests, and affords the maximum protection against attack by means of acetylene burners, or otherwise. Until recently science had devised no means of protection from these burners.

The vault door is finished in beautifully polished steel, locked by two combination locks, and checked with a triple movement Sargent & Greenleaf time lock. Should one of the three time locks fail to function properly, the other two would function, and the door would be in a position to be opened.

Tribou in Charge.

Within the vault are located the customers' safety deposit boxes and the bank's currency safe. Various sizes of safety deposit boxes have been installed to meet every possible requirement. The security furnished will afford customers who wish to have their valuables placed in a positively burglar proof vault, every possible protection known to science.

The safety deposit vaults will be under the management of Fred K. Tribou of this city, and under his supervision customers will be shown every courtesy and furnished every safe guard provided by any of the large metropolitan banks in Chicago, or elsewhere.

Did You Ever Stop to Think—

BY
E. R. Waite, Secretary,
Shawnee, Okla. Board of Commerce

Frank E. Tripp, General Manager of all the Garnett newspapers and publisher of the Star-Gazette, Elmira, New York, says:

That publicity started in the Garden of Eden when God told Eve not to fool with that apple.

That the need of repeated and continuous publicity was proven a few days later when Eve forgot the instructions.

That perhaps indignant over the fact that Eve didn't get a square deal from a publicity standpoint her sex has developed to a science, (not an exact science however) the world's greatest publicity system.

That nature is just one demonstration of publicity after another. The roar of the thunder, the scent of the flowers, the colors of the rainbow are God's publicity.

And did you ever stop to wonder he did it of necessity. Man cannot progress without them, perhaps he could not even live. The fellow who sweeps the streets is as much dependent upon what newspapers create in the world of commerce as John Wanamaker admitted himself to be.

The truth about this publicity and advertising thing is that everybody lives upon it and by it. There's only one exception—the house burglar. And it wasn't so long ago that I heard a merchant refer to his non-advertising competitor as such. It was with some degree of reason too. That man who accepts his income from a line of business in which other men create an advertising tide, without adding his just portion to advertise his line of business, is as much a piker as the fellow who consistently outbaffles his companions at a subway station.

JOSEPH CRAWFORD

President City National 1865-1913

Fellowship of Prayer

Daily Lenten Bible reading and meditation prepared for Commission of Evangelism of Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America.

Read Jn. 1:29-34. Text: 1:29. Behold the Lamb of God which taketh away the sins of the world.

Meditation—In the temple John and his disciples had seen lambs offered in sacrifice. The sacrifice was the best of the little flock without spot or blemish, as the richest expression of the love of the heart of a man for his God. In Hebrews 10 the man upon whom the dove should descend was he who should baptize men into a new spirit, by which they should be able so to love God as to hate the old sins. He would be to them the Lamb of God. The Father's gift of his beloved was to convince the wayward heart of man forever of the redeeming love of God. To this "Lamb" John pointed honest hearts. To this same love of God and cure for sin in Christ the Gospel direct us.

Prayer—In Thy face, O saviour of Men, we see the knowledge of the love of God. No other power than a mightier and holier affection can expel from our divided hearts our love for the unholy and the sensual. I Lamb of God, we come, we come. Amen.

I understand the place did a $30,000 business last month. Moral—bring your bank roll!

The night clubs already get the money at dinner and breakfast. Now they have a gag for getting it at luncheons as well. They have "luncheon rehearsals." Dance and song numbers which are planned for future cabaret features have to be rehearsed anyway. So they rehearse during the lunch hour. And people pay for it.

Speaking of pants here's a new gag from the cloak-and-suit belt:

"Well, Able, I always get two pair of pants mid mine suits."

"Vot do you do mit the odder pair?"

"Eferytime I see you you got the same pair on."

New York—Nature with her gentlest touch has subdued once more the giant Manhattan.

It is always at a time when the giant bellows the loudest, swaggering and boasting his great strength and power, that Nature makes some gesture of supremacy.

Sometimes it is with throat-parching heat that she dries the very blood in his arteries.

Now it is with a cool, white palm that she binds and gags him. She comes dancing up the street, laughing gaily, her skirts whirling and her hands tossing white confetti. It is with the spirit of carnival all about that she lays him low.

At first the giant grows and roars,

BENEFIT CONCERT AND PICTURE FOR DIXON BOYS BAND

Entertainments Next Wednesday, Thursday Evenings

The Boys' Band has arranged a program at the Dixon Theater for next Wednesday and Thursday February 24 and 25th which they are sure will please the theater-going public of Dixon.

O. M. Rogers, Chairman of the Committee, has set up a concert given by the Boys' Band in uniform. It is some time since the Band has been heard in concert and the Dixon people are inquiring when they can be heard. The boys have recently broadcast over WOC and, with their persistent weekly practice, they are ready to give a good account of themselves.

L. G. Rorer, who is also a member of the Band Committee, has secured a special picture for the occasion, which will feature an exceptional cast, assembled by Warner Brothers, under the title of "The Limited Mail." It is interesting to note that for the first time in film history the Royal Gorge in the heart of Colorado will be seen in a photoplay, when the "Limited Mail" is put on next Wednesday and Thursday. This is said to be one of the most beautiful and awe-inspiring pictures ever produced.

The mothers of the Boy Band are fully organized and are selling tickets for these two nights and the Band secures one half of the proceeds of all the tickets sold up to Wednesday noon. The boys are urging every person who is expecting to hear this concert and see this great picture to secure tickets before that time. See any of the Band Boys, their mothers, or call the Y. M. C. A.

LOCAL QUINTETS
WIN TWO GAMES
FROM MENDOTA

Fans Given Some Real
Sport in Games on Local Floor

Two Y. M. C. A. basket ball teams went up against two Mendota teams on the "Y" floor last night and were victorious in both games.

The first game, between the Independents and the Mendota second string team was interesting, but failed to bring out the flashy basket ball usually shown by the local team. Rink and James playing forward, were unable to "get right" on their shots. The local defense was strong enough to hold the Mendota players in check but the offense was slow and the Independents only scored a total of 43 points. Mendota scored 5 points in the first half and one in the last, for a total of 6 points.

The second game found the Y. M. C. A. Triangles working in tip top form. Everyone on the squad was able to account for at least two field goals. The defense of the Triangles has always been good, but the offense which has previously been weak developed into a flashy formation and was able to go through to the basket whenever and however they decided. Clever basketball was exhibited in all phases of the game and Mendota was forced to call time out several times in order to stop the run of baskets by the local team. Such efforts were futile and the Triangles marched triumphantly on. The final whistle came in time to stop the Triangles in the midst of a move down the floor for another goal. The final score was 41 to 14, in favor of the Triangles.

The players, their positions and points scored were:

Mendota	Dixon Triangles
Antine (C) 4	Wickey (C) 12
Gillette (F) 6	O'Malley (F) 9
Strous (F) 2	Snapp (F) 4
Rodd (G) 6	Shepard (G) 6
Rex (G) 2	Miller (G) 10

Weiss' Volley Ballers
Winners of Week Tourney

Weiss' division in the volleyball class at the Y, scored a decisive victory for the week when Gigou, Class B, Captain for Weiss, took Hunt into camp for three straight games and a high total of points. Hunt's attempt at a rally in the second game fell short and Gigou and his men won easily.

Next week, a new tournament, under new captains, will get under way. The new captains will pick their teams tonight and an entirely new system will be developed for use in the volleyball classes.

New York, Feb. 20—(AP)—Counsel for the Countess of Cathcart, successful in warding off her exclusion from this country temporarily, are now turning attention to a study of what constitutes "moral turpitude" the grounds on which she has been denied admission.

Although the countess has admitted eloping with the Earl of Craven, a married man, in 1922, Arthur Garfield Hays, her attorney, contends that her relations with the Earl did not constitute a crime within the federal laws of this country nor a crime in the countries in which the confessed acts were committed, France and South Africa.

Mr. Hays stayed off the Countess' deportation by obtaining a writ of habeas corpus in which she must be produced in the federal court Tuesday morning. She is now at Ellis Island.

In his application for the writ, Mr. Hays included the minutes of Lady Cathcart's testimony before an immigration board of inquiry.

Replying to critics of the department of labor, W. W. Husband, Second Assistant Secretary of Labor, has disclosed that 261 persons have been deported for moral turpitude, men outnumbering women in the ratio of 3 to 1.

Washington, Feb. 20—(AP)—The revenue bill, whipped into shape after four months of constant work, providing for tax reduction of $381,000,000 this year, $343,000,000 there after and for many changes in the administrative features of the present income tax law, is ready for its final trip through congress.

Representing a compromise on many provisions between the senate and house, the bill will be taken before each branch for ratification the first of next week and if approved, will be sent to the White House for the signature of President Coolidge.

The measure will become law before the end of next week, under this program, its managers believe, with many many of its provisions for widespread reduction in taxes becoming effective immediately.

The lowered income tax will be effective on incomes of last year, on which taxes are payable by March 15.

DID WOMAN DOCTOR WHO LIVED AS MAN CURE CANCER CHRISTIAN BOYS AND DADS ENJOY ANNUAL BANQUET

Scores Tell of Remedy She Used

My NEA Service
Mona, Ark.—Did Dr. M. V. Mayfield, the mysterious old woman who came to this little Arkansas town more than a decade ago to live her life as a man, possess the secret that learned physicians have sought fruitlessly for scores of years—the cure for cancer?

Her patients assert she did. There are any number of people in this neighborhood who are ready to step forward and swear that she cured them of malignant cases of the baffling malady.

A strange sort of paste, or salve, the formula for which was known only to herself, made up her remedy. Doctors scoff at the notion that she had a genuine cancer cure, but many people in Mona are fully convinced.

No Solution in Sight

It is just one more mystery added to the tangled tale of her life—a tale that probably never will be straightened out.

Indeed, if Dr. Mayfield had not been a drug addict it is likely that she would have lived her life through without anyone here suspecting that she was not what she pretended to be—a simple, garrulous old man, practicing medicine modestly in a little Arkansas town.

Several months ago she met financial reverses. She could not keep up her supply of drugs. Deprived of them, she became ill, a physician was summoned—and her secret was discovered. She was being cared for in a home of a woman who says that Dr. Mayfield cured her of a cancer years ago.

It was about 12 years ago that Dr. Mayfield came here. She got off an early morning train from the north, dressed as a man, carrying a suit case in one hand and a crate full of live bantam chickens in the other. She found a place to live and began her work as a physician.

The "cancer cure" became famous in this part of the country. She had a salve which she applied to cancers and which, she asserted, drew the poison out of the sore. The cures effected were considered marvelous. Hundreds of persons will testify that she relieved them of cancers.

Aside from her possession of this cure, if it was a cure, she did nothing to attract notice. Never did anyone suspect she was a woman. She smoked an old black pipe, chewed tobacco occasionally like any good Arkansan and loafed in corner restaurants and cigar stores with the other "boys". To be sure, it was noticed that she never swore and would not listen to shady stories—but nobody thought anything about it.

Wealth Is Fiction

She had been twice married, she told her friends, and one wife was buried in Washington. She spoke of having property in other states, and was generally reputed to be wealthy.

But when she became ill and her secret was exposed, it was found that this talk of property was only talk. There came reports from a city in Iowa, telling how she had lived there as a man and had been engaged to a girl—but nothing more to shed light on her past.

She says she was born in England and started living as a boy at the age of two. But her talk is contradictory and confused, and no connected story of her life can be pieced together.

Some Sound Advice.

"If you mean business, really want professional training, why, go on to college. And don't let lack of money scare you from it. Others have worked their way through, and so can you. But if you are thinking college and university as places for a big time and to 'round out yourself socially', don't waste your time and your parents' money, but go get a job and keep your self respect."

ninety friends of the church gathered and enjoyed the splendid supper which was served at 6 o'clock. At the close of the supper Toastmaster Henry Dierdorff in a few well chosen words called upon a number who responded very interestingly and nicely with a toast, among whom were G. D. Black, Fred Krehl, Fred Gross, Dr. F. M. Bunker, E. L. Lett, Mrs. Daniel Miller and Mrs. Joel Senger. The tables were then cleared from the room and a hearty good time enjoyed until late in the evening. A contest of hanging up a washing was one of the main features in which F. D. Lahman, Wm. Holley, David Weigle and William Holley, made desperate efforts to win the prize. However Mr. Lahman and Mr. Holley proved the best and most apt at clothes hanging and captured the prizes. An old time auction was then enjoyed with Fred Gross as auctioneer and Frank Senger as clerk. The goods to be auctioned off were the men present and none but the ladies were allowed to bid. They were very much handicapped as it was buying "Sight Unseen" as the man was placed behind a sheet and only one hand and one foot was visible. It is reported that some of the ladies were very much surprised at their purchase, in fact some thought the man was hardly worth the number of beans they had paid for him. The price was always from 30 to 113 beans. David Weigle brought the highest price. The entertainment committee consisting of Mrs. Henry Dierdorff and Miss Lucy Krehl is entitled to much credit for the manner in which the affair was conducted. The banquet supper was in charge of Mrs. David Weigle, Mrs. Will Crawford and Mrs. Frank Senger.

The revival meeting at the Brethren church closed Sunday night. Eleven people were baptised Monday night and united with the church. Miss Ruth Phillips who is attending the State Normal at DeKalb was a week end guest at the home of her mother, Mrs. Kate Ackerman. She is attending the Normal at DeKalb.

For several years it has been the custom of the Presbyterian Aid Society to give a banquet to their men members. The occasion was held Friday night in the basement of the Methodist church at which time about next Sunday morning at 10:30 and in the evening at 7:30.

George Peterman was brought home from the sanitarium at Springfield Saturday. At this writing he is very much improved. He is under the care of Dr. Chandler and Dr. McNichol. George's many friends are rejoicing with him that he was able to come home.

Members of the Woodman Lodge No. 45, attended a meeting in Dixon last night at which time over one hundred members were received into the Dixon Lodge. Also the occasion was in honor of Mayor Palmer who has been a member of the Woodman organization for fifty years.

Miss Faith Ives attended a party in Dixon Saturday afternoon in honor of Miss Grace Peugh, who will be a bride in the near future.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Eberly of Dixon were Franklin visitors Sunday.

Raymond Dysart and Ray Eckhart motored to Chicago Sunday where they spent the day.

Stanley Timothy was a week end guest with relatives in Chicago.

Sometime ago a deal was made whereby the Woman's Club purchased from Mr. Gilbert at Ashton the tract of land known as Flat Iron Park, which the ladies have been using for a flower garden for the past several years. The land was given to the town and this is the first time in the history of our village to have a park. It is centrally located and will no doubt be kept for park for many years to come. The Woman's Club feel greatly indebted to Atty. E. E. Wingert of Dixon and E. R. Buck of this place for the untiring efforts in purchasing the land. Their service being freely given. The club expect to do quite a little work at the park this summer and hope to make several improvements.

One of the largest farm sales that has been held around here for several years, was that of Emery Wolf held last Wednesday. Our popular young merchants, Conlon & Howard served the lunch at noon, which took over 2500 bums, six boilers full of coffee, and several hams. Jim and Cupp with the assistance of Sam Herbst served the crowd very nicely, and all were happy and good natured as well as was Mr. Wolf, for F. D. Kelley, the auctioneer, had gotten some mighty good bids on the articles to be sold. Mr. and Mrs. Morris Cluts and family are living at the Emery Wolf farm.

Miss Pearl Albright who is attending the State Normal at DeKalb was a week end guest at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Albright.

Fred Shoemaker of St. Louis is visiting at the home of his sister, Mrs. Charles Crum.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Watson moved the first of the week to the Willis Tolman residence.

Mrs. H. A. Dierdorff and son Glenn motored to Chicago Sunday where they spent the day at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Emmert.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Sanders of Ashton attended services in the Presbyterian church Sunday night, and assisted the choir in singing several anthems.

Abram Luepels and family who have been living on the Mrs. Eliza Payne farm are moving to the farm occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Miller entertained Monday night; Mr. and Mrs. Will Crawford, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pyle, Byron MacCracken and Abram Gilbert.

Mr. and Mrs. Joel Senger entertained with dinner Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. John Baker, Mr. and Mrs. Medric Hussey, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Baker and baby. The occasion being the nineteenth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Senger. Their many friends are congratulating them and wishing them many more anniversaries.

Mrs. Charles Pyle, Mrs. Henry Cupp and Mrs. Carl Spangler entertained Saturday afternoon with 12 tables of bridge. Mrs. Harry Stultz won head prize and Mrs. Will Herbst won second prize. During the afternoon a two course luncheon was served. The happy event was held at the Pyle home north of town.

Mr. Fred Gross and Mrs. Will Crawford will entertain seven tables of bridge Saturday afternoon at the Gross home.

Friday was the 80th birthday anniversary of Mr. G. W. Ling, and that the day might be one long to be remembered, his children, grandchildren and great grandchildren to the number of ten gathered at his home and enjoyed a birthday dinner with him.

Mr. McKay said he should be a junior and McKay said, "Nothing doing." So they called on WJJD, at Mooseheart, Ill., to conduct a Baby Name Contest, and the person suggesting the name most acceptable to them would receive a cash prize and the honor of being the first to name a baby "thru the air."

Jack Nelson, Director of WJJD, sent word that not only would the contest be conducted but that Mr. Rodney H. Brandon, Executive Secretary, would be present to witness the drawing.

And Eugene Carlyle McKay is now progressing nicely, thank you.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Phillips and family spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Will Phillips north of Ashton.

Mrs. Elizabeth Durkes entertained the Priscilla Club Friday afternoon.

Mrs. O. D. Lahman went to Dixon Monday to visit her husband who is in the Dixon hospital where he recently submitted to an operation. At

SYNOPSIS

Prince Michael Vervelod, wealthy passion philanderer in Paris, tired of his useless friends and life, becomes interested in Colette, an unworldly girl, whom he protects from her Apache brother-in-law, Emile. But while Michael and Colette are picnicking, Emile disappears with his son, Billy, to whom Colette is devoted. Meanwhile, Michael's innocent brother, Paul, is camped for revenge by Dolores, one of Michael's cast-offs.

CHAPTER IX—Continued

She had dressed sparingly in a one-piece lounging gown—a clinging, softish robe under which the mature roundness and firm curves of her body were revealed in that simpling, enticing half-revelment which is infinitely more provocative than pagan nudity. She knew the amorous value of dimly shaded, deep-colored lights, and of incense; when her trap was all set she lay back with studied luxuriance on a down-pillowed, silk-couch like a high priestess on the very altar of love.

She mused contentedly while awaiting the fly's buzzing approach.

"Ah, Monsieur Michael, if you could but see me now. It is for you to remember, Michael, what is said about the Mills of the Gods—that they grind slowly, but exceedingly small. It is so!"

A servant announced Paul. Dolores nodded that he be admitted, then quickly stretched and relaxed herself—gown, and body, and pillows—into the pose of most tempting abandon. With Michael this preparation would never have done, for a man of the world has to be studied and his mood of the moment intrigued. But with a mere virgin boy!—she would engage his mood in the fragrance of her hair and spin it dizzily to her own liking. Now!—a pat here, a touch there, a discreet lifting—and so—Cleopatra on her Nile barge was never more alluringly encounched! Dolores was indeed ready for the clinching stroke of her game against Michael.

Paul hurried in and stopped short in breathless, hushed confusion—awed, delighted, entranced. Then he kissed Dolores' gracefully extended hand, from which the wide sleeves fell away baring her creamy arm.

When a man is in love with a younger girl, or one in whose presence he is manfully sex-conscious, he brings candy; when with an elder girl, or one to whom he looks up, he brings flowers. So Paul had brought both.

"You boys for the pert little playgirl in you, Mademoiselle," he smiled, presenting his gifts, "and red roses as your humble slaves' tribute to the fine, noble woman in you!"

She accepted the tokens, maternal and spoken, with the gracious condescension of a queen. Then she gently took Paul's hands and drew him down upon the couch beside her—drew his face down, too, between her warm, moist palms and kissed him clinging.

"Dear, precious boy, you are an incurable poet! But no matter;

your queen loves poesy in her favored courtier. Do you know,

Paul, I am getting to be as silly in one way as you say that you are,

for I actually find myself counting the hours until you come again!"

"Really!" cried Paul in his tight, wistful voice. "Then you know now, Dolores, what an agony I live through in those hours when we are not together. Oh, Dolores, can't we put an end forever to this living apart? Can't we be—"

"When are you going to stop playing truant and return to college to resume your studies, you bad boy?" she calmly interrupted.

"Confound the college!" he cried impatiently. "I've written to them that I shall not return!"

SMALL TO HURRY ROAD WORK THIS YEAR, HE STATES

Hopes for Cooperation in Completing Old Bond Issue Work

Leaving that work on the new routes can start immediately. The remaining portions of the original bond issue system must be disposed of first.

"We will continue, as we have in the past, to push road building in Illinois with the greatest possible speed, and I will do everything within my power as governor of this state to carry on as large a highway construction program as possible during the year 1926."

"Suppose Michael puts his foot down," she cut in lightly, "and insists that you do as he says? Remember, he is your older brother and always has been your mentor. And remember, too, he does not favor me."

"My affairs are my own!" Paul cried hotly, blindly charging with the instinctive passion of a young bull at the unseen red flag with which she was goading him. "He butted into my business long enough, and I told him so only yesterday when he came to my door and begged me to go back to live with him and to give you up."

"You see!" she sighed with sweet forlornness, clasping her hands. "He does not favor me and no matter how tender our affections for one another, Paul, darling, you dare not—"

"I dare anything, Dolores, for you! I love you. Nothing else in the world matters. Now, dear, please tell me when we will be—"

She tapped his pouting lips with a soft finger which was ostensibly meant to be quieting, but really had quite the opposite effect. He seized her hand and pressed hot kisses into its velvety palm.

"Think, dear boy, think! You cannot cross Michael like this, because after all you are dependent upon him—"

"But I am not dependent upon him, Dolores. I have an income of my own, as large as his. Now please, don't torture me this way any longer, but say when—"

Dolores closed her eyes with an excited simulation of passion, and drew his head upon her breast; clasped him tightly there, so that he was lost in a dizzy, panting ecstasy; suffocated his pleases in the throes of her embrace. But once his head was below her chin, Dolores opened her eyes and they were quite calm and bright as she looked off into space, smiling slightly, while dreams of revenge and alimony danced in her head quite as blithely as visions of sugar plums ever did in the heads of good children on Christmas Eve.

It was her Christmas grab bag! What would Michael think of her as his sister-in-law? It was rich! It was droll! Socially, of course, for a while, such a match would be most advantageous. It would not last. Michael and common sense would turn Paul from her eventually, if, indeed, she did not find the callow boy so much of a bore that she could not bear to await his turning.

But before then—what lines she could set! And after that—what lascivious alimony she would get!

Her immediate attention was summoned by the bleating of the lamb on the Elysian pasture of her breast. "When, Dolores darling, say when—" he pleaded ceaselessly. His trembling arms were clasped around her waist; his shaking knees had slipped to the floor.

Dolores judiciously permitted a dim mist of rising passion to inflame her eyes, to creep huskily into her voice:

"Dear boy," she crooned, nestling her face down close to his, writhing her body against his, stroking his hair, breathing a spell over him that made it impossible for him to reason and answer in any way but as she willed, "are you sure that you are really, truly, love me and want to marry me?"

"Sure of it?" "I'm as sure of our love as I am sure that night follows day—" They clung to one another in a long, impasioned kiss. After a while, Paul asked again. "You will marry me, Dolores darling, won't you?"

"Yes!"

Another endless, delirious kiss; Paul half-swooning with the poignancy of his imagined ideals. Dolores cynically clear-headed.

The boyish face he lifted to her was alive with impetuosity and eagerness. "We will make our lives a perpetual honeymoon."

"Poor, foolish, darling Paul, you must have your own way, mustn't you? Well, I've tried to point out all the pitfalls to you, but if you still persist in not noticing them, I've done all that I can—"

"My darling, when will we be married—when?"

Soft and low was the reply whispering his rumpled hair: "As you wish."

"I will be immediately; I will and arrange matters to much to do. The ring the—" "Paul dear—"she sat up and tried to talk seriously to him—"don't let your heart run away with your head. When I said that I would marry you as soon as you wish, I did not imagine that you would take that to be within the next twenty-four hours. Let us make it, say in two weeks?"

"Two weeks? Never!"

Delay Start of Air Mail from Chicago to Dallas

St. Joseph, Mo., Feb. 20.—(AP)—Governor Len Small yesterday issued a statement concerning road building prospects in view of the Supreme Court's decision Thursday which empowers the Division of Highways to make minor changes in routing of state-aid roads.

"The decision of the supreme court," the Governor's statement said, "sustains the Division of Highways in its effort to avoid two dangerous surface railroad crossings and disposes of one more of the controversies in the location of the roads which are delaying the great road building program of our state. It is sincerely hoped that the people interested in the location of the few remaining portions of the $60,000,000 bond issue system will cooperate with the highway division in securing the rights of way so that these portions may be placed under contract in the near future."

"The awarding of the remaining contracts on the $60,000,000 bond issue will enable us to begin work on the new system of roads provided in the $100,000,000 bond issue law."

The Virginia decision will, of course, be of material assistance in helping to bring this about, but the public should not become confused into be-

Wales Thinks Markets in England Better Than Ours

London, Feb. 20—(AP)—Continuing his expressions of interest in various British industries, the Prince of Wales turned up at the Smithfield Market Friday and made a thorough tour of the stalls where meat is handled by the wholesalers.

The Prince shook hands with many former service men, now meat porters or salesmen. He visited the tavern and stood up at the bar with scores of such workers. His drink was a cup of coffee.

The Prince told the market superintendent that he had visited meat markets in Chicago and elsewhere, but that the Smithfield organization was superior to them all.

Col. Smith Has Visited Eighty-three Counties

Chicago, Feb. 20—(AP)—Frank L. Smith, seeking the republican nomination for U. S. Senator, has canvassed 83 of Illinois' 102 counties outside Cook his headquarters today.

After devoting next week to private business, he will begin again at Streator, March 3 and carry out a schedule taking him to Clark, Coles, Cumberland, Montreux, Platte, Shelby and Vermillion counties.

DIXON DEFEATED IN CLOSING GAME ON "ATTIC" FLOOR

The 1926 basketball curtain was rung down at the south side high school "attic" last evening with Rock Falls romping away with the long end of the final game on the local floor by a score of 25 to 18. The Dixon team was completely outplayed by the visitors, who caged baskets from almost every angle and started out with a style of play which was difficult to break up.

Several switches were made in the Dixon lineup with a hope that the score could be turned, but Rock Falls continued with only one substitution during the evening. Dixon took a spurt in the last three minutes of play and dropped two over the rim in rapid succession. In the third quarter the visitors scored three field baskets within less than two minutes time. The teams lined up as follows:

Dixon—Johnson, rg; Larkin (Capt.), Ig; Weiman, c; Bondi, rf; McReynolds, lf.

Rock Falls—Johnson, rg; Egan, Ig; Goldfus, c; Willett, rf; Pignatelli, M. Substitutions—Dixon, Kennedy for Larkin. Larkin for Johnson, Johnson for Kennedy. Rock Falls—Wheeler for Goldfus.

In the curtain raiser event of the evening, the second and third teams administered a 21 to 15 drubbing to the Ashton high school quintette. The visitors have some real stars in their lineup but their strong men were unable to carry on the battle throughout the period. In the last quarter several third string men were sent in to warm up. The line up:

Dixon—Padgett, rf; Schertner, lf; Hoffman, c; Kinney, rg; Blackburn, lg.

Ashton—Yenerich, rg; Nelson, Ig; Moore, c; Hart, rf; Dorland, lf.

Gone are the Old Penalties of Low Price

Until the new Pontiac Six was developed, it was literally impossible to buy a low priced six without accepting certain admitted penalties—those of ordinary beauty, ordinary performance, ordinary comfort and ordinary stamina.

Now the new Pontiac Six changes all that. Developed by engineers who could draw on the almost limitless resources of General Motors, it provides not only the economy of an unexpectedly low price—but every characteristic of high quality.

It provides the striking beauty of a

"BIG CITY" STARS WILL ATTEMPT TO TAKE ABC MATCH

Roll Their Games in International Meet in Twin Cities

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 20—An effort will be made by "big city teams" tonight to shake up leaders in the International Bowling Association tournament. Quints from Chicago, Milwaukee and Omaha are expected to put the high marks set up to their severest tests. Among the big town bowlers is included Billy Sixty, one of the best known bowlers attending the tournament who will lead the Washington squad of Milwaukee on the first five man shift.

Election of officers and selections of next year's tournament city were important business that faced the annual meeting of the association today.

WILLS IS TRYING NEW SERVICE FOR LENGLEN MATCH

Had Fine Success with Twister in Games Yesterday

Beaulieu, France, Feb. 20—(AP)—Helen Wills is trying out a service with a twisting bounce possibly for use against Suzanne Lenglen should they meet in the Nice tournament next month. She used it yesterday in two singles matches which she won with ease.

The service is made with less speed than her usual first offering, but it causes the ball to take a twisting bounce and her opponent to reach to the extreme outside on the forehand. When the ball is returned it generally reaches the net or just into

ILLINI LEADING "BIG TEN" RACE FOR CAGE TITLE

Wisconsin Gets Real Test in Meeting With Purdue

Chicago, Feb. 20—(AP)—When Wisconsin meets Purdue tonight at Madison the Badgers get a test that may forecast the final standing in the Western Conference basketball campaign.

Boosted from the lead by Illinois' victory over Indiana, 21-20, Wisconsin must win to retain even divided honors with the Illini in the cage. Purdue, meanwhile, must win to lift itself from among the five teams in the fifty-fifty section with an even break in wins and losses.

Northwestern, which drubbed Iowa for its first Big Ten victory, hopes to repeat at Iowa City, though the Hawks have not lost on their home floor. The Purple staged an upset early in the week when they toppled Wisconsin by a ten point margin.

Ohio State and Michigan, both down in the conference rating, clash at Columbus.

French Tennis Stars Beat America's Best

New York, Feb. 20—(AP)—The names of Jean, Rene and Jacques join that of Suzanne in the list of tennis heroes produced by the land of La Fayette.

Borotra, La Coste and Brunnon eliminated William T. Tilden, Vincent Richards and Francis Hunter from the national indoor championships here yesterday. One American remains in the struggle—youthful John Van Ryn, a Princeton under graduate. To bring back the title now held by Borotra he must defeat La Coste in the semi-finals today and then overcome the winner of today's contest between Borotra and Brunnon.

The great Tilden, who for seven years had not tasted defeat in championship tennis play, was beaten by Borotra 13-11, 6-3. Richards was beaten by La Coste 64, 6-2. Hunter lost to Brunnon 6-4, 6-4.

The American champion gave full credit to his conqueror in singles.

"Borotra at his best is a great player and he was at his best today," he said.

Rockford Took Couple of Games from Elgin

Elgin, Ill., Feb. 20—(AP)—Elgin high school's basketball team lost a double header to Rockford last night, losing the heavyweight game 26-14, and the lightweight scrap, 17-14.

DANGER IN NEGLECTED COLDS.

Serious diseases may develop from neglected coughs and colds and make them dangerous. There is no better remedy for quick relief from coughs and colds than Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. "My grandchild could get no relief whatever from a very bad cough, until I gave him Foley's Honey and Tar," writes Peter Landis, Meyersdale, Pa. Get a bottle
